Alberta Parliament Opens: Legislation Forecasted In Speech

With its ceremonial brilliancy the ceremony of opening the Alberta Legislature was performed this afternoon. There were probably more sightseers this year than ever before. While the opening ceremony did not begin until 3 o'clock people began to arrive before noon, and when the house opened at 2 o'clock the galleries were filled in a few minutes. The floor of the house was reserved for members of the house and their wives and certain government officials and their wives. As His Honor the Lieutenant Governor arrived everyone stood at attention. The governor's escort, composed of ranking army officers, added to the great vivacity of the function, while the many beautiful gowns worn by the ladies present added to the animation of the scene.

Escorted by R. C. M. P.

His Honor the Lieutenant Governor was escorted from government house to parliament buildings by a strong detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The full text of the speech from the throne was as follows:-

The speech from the throne was as follows:-

Mr. Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly:

I welcome you to the opening of the first session of the fifth legislative assembly.

Since the close of the last session His Grace the Duke of Devonshire has concluded a term of service as Governor General of Canada, which will be remembered with deep appreciation. He has been succeeded by Baron Byng of Vimy as His Majesty's representative. It is with great satisfaction that we welcome him, and we believe that the services he will render in this capacity will be of the same high order as those which endeared him to our people as commander of the Canadian troops at the front.

Bureau of Labor

In common with many other parts of Canada and the world, Alberta has suffered the general economic and industrial depression following the war but present indications give hope of a gradual recovery. This depression has resulted in extensive unemployment. My government has taken full cognizance of these conditions and his instituted measures to meet immediate necessities, at the same time considering a more satisfactory method of dealing with the problem. Legislation will be introduced to create a Bureau of Labor in order that the problems concerning the wage-earners of the province may receive that consideration to which they are entitled.

Crop Failures in South

The conditions existing in certain sections of the southern part of the province, consequent upon failures of crops and general depression in markets and the financial conditions created by a series of poor crop seasons, have received the attention of the government. Necessary measures for the immediate relief of the re-

Enthusiastic Times At Fram G.G.A. Chicken Dinner

On Saturday last, February 4th a good crowd assembled to partake of a splendid dinner provided by the lady members of the association, ably assisted by the remaining ladies of the district. After everyone had done ample justice to all the good things, the tables were cleared, and the usual monthly meeting of the association was held.

The secretary was instructed to ascertain the date of the next meeting of the Trustees of the Fram School District, and Mr H. Oelstrum was chosen a delegate to attend that meeting.

The remaining business being speedily cleared up, Mr A. S. Lavold (president) introduced the two special speakers, and called upon Mr L. D'Albertanson to address the gathering.

COMMUNITY EXPRESSION

Leonard D'Albertanson, editor of the Chauvin Chronicle, in replying to the introduction of the chairman said that he did not wish to be regarded as a visitor from the town. He admits being born and educated in the little city of London, England. That he had had seven years in the dry goods business, after which he was engaged in the printing trade for seven more years. At this time the offer of 160 acres of land in Canada appealed so strongly that he answered their call and came out as a green Englishman who couldn't tell the difference between wheat, oats, barley and flax. He preferred then to be known as a neighbour whom they had had all known driving his team of oxen past their homestead in the early days.

If a title should be given to his rambling remarks, he would give the title "Community Expression," or the community learning to and expressing its own thoughts and determinations on matters of concern to it.

In a reminiscent manner the speaker portrayed the early arrival of the first settlers to the district. He related how the vastness of the prairie offered the promise of homes and fortune, how the miles seemed shorter by reason of our cheerful hopes in the future. He spoke of the increasing power of the sensation of isolation caused by the delay in the realization of our hopes.

The lack of social life in the early days strengthened this feeling of isolation. Out towns and villages were trading centres and provided only a livery barn and hotel and places to trade; whilst in the rural parts we had no such organization or means of gathering together such as in this meeting to-day. The utter silence of the prairies at times became absolutely painful, he had shouted and sung, and even sworn to break down the silence. As a result of this experiences the speaker claimed he had a far more acute hearing to-day than when he arrived in Canada.

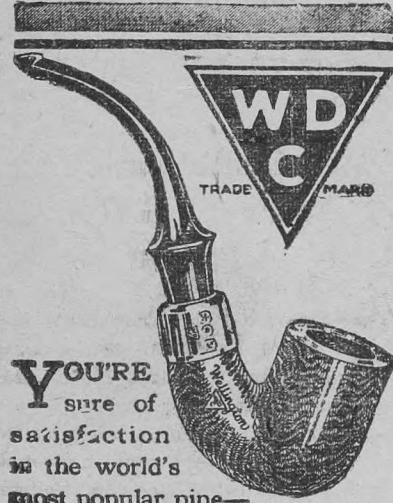

The more sinister aspect of this sense of isolation came into force as the burden of continued debt bore us down. He related how one year he

CUCUMBER CULTURE

The cucumber as we know it is a descendant of the Asiatic species (Cucumis Sativa), varieties of which have been cultivated from very early times. Pliny tells us that the Roman Emperor Tiberius was so fond of cucumbers that he had them served up at table every day of the year.

The ridge and prickly varieties do well when grown in the open air, a light soil deeply dug and heavily manured, in a position sheltered from all cold winds is most suitable for the purpose.

For a few early cucumbers seed should be sown in March or early in April in a hotbed or in boxes in the house. As the young roots of the cucumber are very tender and easily damaged it does not transplant successfully. Procure a sod 12 inches wide, 16 inches long and 2 to 3 inches thick, cut into 4 inch squares; with the grassy side down place into a box or flat. Scoup a depression in each piece of sod $\frac{1}{2}$ an inch deep and place 3 or 4 seeds in it, cover with fine soil and water. Place the box in a hotbed or a warm place in the house and shade with paper until the seedlings appear which should be in 6 or 7 days. Remove the shade and give plenty of light and air, don't allow to wilt. When the plants have fully developed their seed leaves, thin out to one to each piece of sod, leaving the strongest plants, but cut off close to the soil with a knife or scissors so as not to injure the roots of the remaining plant. As soon as the plants have made four rough leaves give a dressing of finely pulverized well rotted manure and light loam, equal parts which should be firmly pressed round about the plants. On fine warm days raise sash at back and give plenty of air, water thoroughly both the foliage and the roots with water about the same temperature as the hotbed which should be about 60° F. at night, not over, and about 55° F. during the day.

As the weather gets warmer begin to harden the plants by removing the sashes in the daytime, replacing at night and afterwards move from the hotbed to a cool frame where they can be protected during the nights. When danger of frost is past remove in box to garden, with a plant and a sod intact proceed to plant in specially prepared soil preferably on the north side of few rows of sunflower or corn which will afford a certain amount of shade. Plant in rows 4 feet between the plants and 6 feet between the rows. Have boxes or sacks handy for covering plants in case of cold nights. Constant light cultivation and a good mulch of well rotted manure is necessary, give two dressings of nitrate of soda about 1 ounce to four plants.

To make the plants fruit well remove the false blooms, all weak shoots and pinch the growing points of the runners when they have reached a length of about 2 feet. Water thoroughly, both foliage and roots and never allow the plants to wilt.

To grow cucumber, squash, marrows, without heat, select a piece of land very rich, light and well drained and that has been well worked. Dig holes 2 feet by 2 feet and 6 inches deep, keep the top soil by itself for as many hills as you propose to plant, say 6 feet apart each way. Procure a sufficient quantity of well rotted manure and mix with equal parts of the soil removed from the holes; refill the holes with this mixture to within 3 or 4 inches of the top and press down firmly. Give each hole one or two pails of water according to the dryness of the ground. After the water has disappeared finish off with a layer of the top soil. Take a hoe and with the surplus soil make a ridge all round the hill which will form a basin and make it easier to water the plants as they grow.

In May, or early in June sow about twelve seeds in a hill. After the seedlings are well established remove all but four of the strongest. Have boxes handy for covering during the cold nights.

Observe there are two kinds of blooms on the same plants, false and true blooms, which are easily distinguished the one from the other. The true bloom having a miniature fruit immediately below the flower. Remove all blooms until the plants have attained a fair size. To ensure a good set of fruit, on a bright sunny morning about noon, with a small soft brush, which must be perfectly dry, remove the pollen from the best false blooms and dust the inside of Attention is now being directed towards the country's natural resources, as never before, since it is generally recognized that only by a more widespread utilization of Canada's undeveloped lands, mines, forests, water-powers and fisheries can present day economic problems be solved.

Wainwright Boys

Still Hold Fast To The Dawson Cup

In the Dawson cup game which was played on Friday last between Wainwright and Chauvin teams, although there was only a fair attendance, those who turned out were treated to the fastest and most spectacular hockey ever played in this district. The first period was lightning fast several players skating themselves almost into collapse.

Morris scored the first goal after another twelve minutes McKay found the net with a long shot and while the Chauvinites were not able to score during this period, local fans will never see any better hockey played around here than was dished up at this time.

The boys from Chauvin put up "big league stuff" and possibly played better combination than the home team at times, but in spite of that Wainwright sure worked like trojans, and their win was a worthy one. In the second period Hallard took six minutes to find the goal for the first Chauvin goal, but Gaudiche evened up on this and McKay taking an assist from Morris and Brunner again added to the Wainwright total, this proving to be the end of the scoring.

At the opening of the third lapse it was plainly seen that the visitors were playing to score, and some pretty combination plays by Hallard and Rodden were only broken up by the hard work of Morris and Brunner on the defence line, while Pigeon and Greer were at times a whole team in themselves.

The following is the summary:
Goals—1st period, Morris 1; McKay, 1. 2nd period, Hallard 1; Gaudiche, 1; McKay 1. 3rd period —0—0. Wainwright, 4; Chauvin, 1.

The line up was—

Trees For The Prairies

A feature of the work of the Dominion Forestry Branch, which increases in importance from year to year, is the supplying free of charge, of tree seedlings and cuttings for planting windbreaks on prairie farms. For the last few years about five millions of seedlings have been sent out annually, under the direction of the Dominion Forest Nursery Station at Indian Head, Saskatchewan, and it is expected the number shipped in the coming spring will show an increase. The species of trees sent out, and which do well on the prairies, are Manitoba maple, Russian poplar, willow, green ash, and caragana. The last named is really a large shrub, an importation from Russia, sometimes called Siberian pea, which has proved very valuable for hedges and windbreaks on the prairies.

Heavy Draft Class Or General Purpose

A proposal has gone in to the Agricultural Society to cut out the and replace it by a heavy draft class.

By this arrangement all horses weighing over 1500 lbs would be classed as heavy draft, and all horses weighing over 1200 or 1300 lbs would be classed as Agricultural.

After 12 years draft horse breeding we have very few General purpose horses left.

What do you think of it?

The agricultural Society are making plans to launch a membership drive in the near future. Further particulars will be announced shortly.

Burns Night

Ye editor going home at the wee small hour of two in the morning did not take in all the good things at the Burn's supper, for after he left during the night the periods of cooling off for the next schottische were filled up by an impromptu program, some of those who took part being Mrs. Mann, who charmed her audience with song after song. Andy McSporan and Mrs. Tom Armour in a duet, "When Ye Gang Awa, Jamie," while Miss Jessie Simpson gave a fine exhibition of Swedish drill and Lawson, Artland gave a much admired step dance and Mr. and Mrs. Parcells who se assistance in the musical part of the program was much appreciated.

Fruit, tea and cakes were served by th bachelor members of the society near the close of the dancing, which was much appreciated after the strenuous nature of the dance. The closing number danced was "The Flowers of Edinburgh," by special request.

The evening wound up in the good old Scottish fashion of linking hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," with three cheers for the piper and one for "ourselves" bringing to a close a night and morning, the memory of which will last a long while with those present, while for the benefit of any doubting Thomas we will add that all of us got home in time to do the morning chores?

had refused to give a chattel mortgage as further security for some unpaid machinery notes; and how the next year he was again asked to give a chattel mortgage. This time he told the collector that he might have to land and everything on it. The collector, sizing up the speaker and sizing him correctly, as a discouraged man, talked to him for some half and hour, and gave him renewed courage by showing how his firm was interested in his success. This experience the speaker had never forgotten, and it had done much to break down that sense of isolation for him.

Regarding politics, he said that after having taken an interest in Old Country politics, he had on arrival, sought to understand Canadian politics. In 1906 he read both the Winnipeg Free Press and the Winnipeg Telegram, and found upon their editorial pages a mutual recrimination of the opposing side, and even such an expression as "the country will soon be divided into Liberals and fools" on the editorial pages. He then decided that he would never be associated with any political party, and until today has kept this determination. True he had, in the last Alberta election stood solid to the support of Harry Strachan because he regarded Strachan as a man who would ever give a square deal for he was a man who nobody or no party (including his own party) could buy. Strachan was a Liberal, but he did not support because he was a Liberal, but because he was a man who would remain true to those fine and stern qualities found in the Scotch.

In 1913 the speaker after working a few weeks for the printer then in Chauvin began to give more earnest consideration to the question of operating a local weekly paper. A paper which should give, not only the news of the district, but which also should give expression to our local thoughts and ideals. With the small $700 outfit and type all set by hand very little was possible, but as the years passed what at first seemed a dream became a fact. In 1917 J. MacDonald of the Unity Courier, and the speaker both introduced the Linotype machine into their offices, making it possible to accomplish a good deal more along this line.

During this same period there had developed the Grain Growers Associations and the U.F.A.s which had done much to help the rural dweller.

The nation's voice was incomplete until the voice of the universities, the cities, the big daily press press and magazines had been joined by the voice of the country dweller.

As editor of the local paper it had been his pleasure and privilege to publish many writings and opinions of local people, and to give full expression to all such bodies as provided us the opportunity to do so. He had ever earnestly solicited the writings of local people, and only regretted that more was not available.

He had learned that upon the prairie were to be found men with ability, for nearly every occupation in life, you would find men and women on the prairie who can fill these positions. Let us not therefore speak of one another simply as "old Joes", or "only Jack" or "just Bill." Rather than demeaning ourselves let us up-build ourselves into a community.

Speaking of different parts of the West through which he had had the privilege of travelling, the speaker maintained that our country with its bluffs and rolling hills was essentially an "home country" and especially as compared with the barren level prairie country.

Economic conditions had not favored us during the past few years. But we have some splendid assets left—our health, our homes, our wives, our husbands, our parents, and our children.

Before us lays a great task, a task which may not be completed before many of us are lying in our graves. The task of building up a more perfect community than the world has yet seen. Be loyal to your organization and work ever and in all things with this end in view.

Personally I have always been opposed to entering into Prov. Politics and the result of the elections last June showed that many more thought likewise. We maintained that in any case, whatever the Government called itself we had a majority of farmers in the House and they would see that the farmers interests were well protected so far as it is possible for a Provincial Government to do so. The case as you know was otherwise in the Federal House so we practically all supported an avowed G. G. for that house.

sentatives have found themselves at variance with the government and have formed themselves into a separate opposing group, not strong enough to seriously embarrass the government. Out strong enough, to conceivably in my opinion jeopardize the best interests of those whom they no doubt conscientiously represent.

Also a feeling has been growing for some time that our executive, though no doubt conscientious men have not been promulgating a policy likely to serve best interests and in the wheat board question which they have shown, have neglected our directly expressed wishes.

This matter will be brought up at the coming convention, where I understand you will have a delegate and you are very likely to see a new executive as the outcome of the general discontent, which discontent has had the result of a serious loss of membership to the G. G. Ass. and it is this loss I want to get at.

Last year only I believe you formed yourselves into a local and this year it is no doubt gratifying for you to know you have some increase in membership. This is as it should be and may the good work continue is the best we can all wish.

We all have our ideals and some of us, a very few, strive continually and steadfastly to attain as near as may be to those idealss. Others of us earnestly yearn after our ideals and are content to let it go at yearning. The remainder have an ideal suggested to them, by some more or less earnest worker. They immediately wax tremendously enthusiastic endeavors. They go forward with a full head of steam with the desperate determination to get that ideal immediately or sooner or bust. When to the pained surprise and deep disappointment of some poor devil of a secretary who has been doing all the donkey work for them with no thanks. They waver, pause, and finally retreat into their old apathy and are content to kick most vehemently as of yore from the depths of that sacred old easy chair at home, because some one else is not up and doing and bringing those ideals to them. When they should know that the only way to gain anything worth while in this world is to get busy and go after it He! bent for election as the saying is. Never giving in, never getting faint hearted, constantly and continuously straining for their goal.

They may then possibly succeed in winning that goal and if not why "the rapture of pursuing is the prize the vanquished gain," or they can console themselves with Shakespeare who says, "Tis not in mortals to command success, but we'll do more Sempronius, we'll deserve it."

It appears to me that we farmers are cursed with this getting weary disease. Others may have it, even editors of enterprising and progressive local ne wspapers, but I am concerned now with US. Have you not seen examples of it in our own district. (The sudden revival and flaming up of religious activity which all too soon dwindle again till the merest flicker is all that is discernable).

The waxing into strong life of other activities. You can think of some for yourselves, only to see them wane to a mere existance and in many cases to become totally extinct. And as a warning to you let me bring to your notice the recent demise of your neighboring Local of Manitou Lake.

In 1920 the Saskatchewan G. G. Ass. as a whole had fewer members than the year before and I dare venture to say that in spite of the excitement of electioneering and the formation of the N.N.P.P. that report for 1921 will show a further decrease.

And this in spite of the splendid aims they have in view. In seeking to ameliorate the hard lot of the farmer, to right his many wrongs and bring him home comfort and contentment.

To forward social activities to bring enjoyment and happiness to young and old. To foster that community spirit that should engender good will one to another and is it too much to say knit us more closely together in ties of brotherly love.

This is what I mean when I say "be not weary in well doing." You are a young local, just an infant, but you are no doubt stil full of enthusiasm and life.

See to it that your president and secretary never have to listen to those unworthy excuses that I have had to listen to—"The night was too dark or cold!" "Oh, it's too far for me to come." "Your meetings are not interesting enough." "It's not doing me any good anyway" and so on.

And do not for the love of Mike say:—"Oh, yes the G. G. are all all right, but etc.. etc." That is damning with faint praise and does more harm than open hostility. Remember a soldier has much more respect for a valiant enemy than for his own countryman who might have fought side by side with him and did not.

Enthusiasm then, continuous undying enthusiasm is what is required and bear in mind that you don't have to quit your local because you don't see eye to eye with the president and secretaary, or one of the directors, or another member. Don't say you will not be a Grain Grower because Mr Maharg, of Mr Musulman, have done something you don't like. The association is the thing, and no individual feelings hould weigh against it. The association first, last, and al! the time.

As I have said, you are young yet. Now I don't want to be a Jeremiah. If any of you say I am, I deny the soft impeachment, but I predict that next year your troubles will begin. One or two will become lukewarm, maybe give up attending meetings and when one or two start it soon spreads.

Now whenever any of you feel that way, take Mr Punch's advise to those about to be married—"Don't." Just think of what I am saying to you today, and say, "By golly, I'm just going to stick." "I've just got to make that croaker into a false prophet any way." And I assure you, friends, I do so want to be made into one of those who prophesied vain things.

Dont desert stand by, full of the strong determination to do things. Remember you are fighting to make a better world for your brother farmer to live in, and that you are working for the betterment of Canada as a whole.

Be stedfast, constant, and true to your aims. So shall you bring to pass even the wildest dreams and joy to the hearts of those who first sidents of these sections have been undertaken with the hope of arriving at a permanent solution of this problem, my government appointed the Southern Alberta survey board. The report of the board, the outstanding feature of which is faith and confidence in the future of the area under investigation, will shortly be placed before you.

Necessity for Economy

My government fully appreciates need for economical and careful administration in order to maintain unimpaired the credit of the province it is felt that a strong development policy is necessary. To this end, legislation will be submitted to you providing for a public highway system. You will also be asked to provide for railway and telephone extensions.

Ernest attention is being given to the marketing of farm products, and creation of increased facilities in this respect.

Survey of Freight Rates

Believing that any improvement in the general economical condition of the province is dependent upon a substantial reduction of freight rates my government will cooperate with the governments of the other western provinces in pressing for a reduction of rates on farm products. A freight rates expert has been engaged to make a survey of rates as they affect the consumer, the marketing of agricultural products, and other resources of the province.

The question of the return of the natural resources has been the subject of a conference between my advisers and the minister of the interior. My government will continue to urge upon the Dominion government the necessity of their immediate transfer.

Importance of Education

every element of the community a growing sense of the importance of education. This is shown by the increased attendance at the university and the high schools of the province, and by the fact that the number of rural schools in which grades higher than eight are being taught has gradually increased during the past year. It will be the policy of the government to foster and assist as far as possible in providing the means of meeting this most commendable desire for education.

The question of public health will my government, not only from the preventive, but also from the curative standpoint. Child welfare clinics and public school inspections will be increased, and further municipal hospital districts organized.

Amendments to Statutes

You will be asked to consider legislation dealing with certain important amendments to existing statutes.

The annual reports of the various departments of the government will be presented to the house in due course.

The public accounts for the last fiscal year will be placed before you, and the estimates of expenditure for the current fiscal year will be submitted for your consideration.

I now leave you to these and any other matters that may be submitted to you, with confidence that the public interest will at all times be advanced and fully safeguarded.

CLEANED WHILE HE WAITED

A little fellow sat on a doormat crying bitterly. Presently a sympathetic old lady came along.

"What's the matter, little boy?" she asked.

"Got my new pants covered with dust," sobbed the boy.

"But they're clean now, dear," continued the woman.

"I know they are," wailed the lad.

"Then why do you still cry, child?"

"Cos mother wouldn't let me take 'em off while she beat the dust out."

"Are you ready, dear?" John called.

"Yes. I'll be down in a minute; I've only got to put my hat on."

"All right. I'll have time to shave before we go."

HOW CANADA IS GOVERNED

THE CIVIL LAW OF FRENCH CANADA

The criminal law of England has prevailed in all the provinces since it was formerly introduced by the proclamation of 1763, and the Quebec Act of 1774.

The French Canadians never objected to this system of law, since it gave them the advantage of trial by jury, which was unknown to French law.

The civil law, however, that prevailed in Canada under the French rule, has continued to be the legal system in the province of Quebec since the cession, and is much and deservedly cherished by the people. Its principles have been carefully collected and enacted in a code prepared by order of the Emperor Napoleon in the beginning of the last century. The rules of procedure relating to the civil law have also been laid down in a distinct code.

The civil law of French Canada had its origin, like all similar systems, in the Roman law, on which were engrafted, in the course of centuries, those customs and usages which were adapted to the social condition and progress of France. The various civil divisions or departments of France had their special usages called customs which governed each, but all of them rested on the original foundation of the Roman code of 527-534 before Christ.

The custom of Paris became the fundamental law of Canada during the French rule. The law has been modified since 1763 by contact with English laws and customs, and by the necessities and circumstances of a new country; but despite any amendments and modifications it has undergone in order to keep it in touch with the conditions of modern life and the needs of commerce and enterprise, the important principles which affect the civil rights of individuals, the purchase and transfer of property, marriage and inheritance, and many other matters of direct interest to all persons in a community still remain and command the admiration of all jurists.

The procedure in the courts is, however, open to criticism, and is much more expensive than it is in the eastern provinces of Canada.

THE ENGLISH COMMON LAW

In the other provinces the common law of England forms the foundation of their jurisprudence. Its general principles were brought into this country by the early English settlers, but the courts have held that they did not bring with them those parts of the law which were not suitable to the new condition of things in America.

It is composed of rules, principles and customs, long established in England, and above all, it is a system replete with the principles of individual liberty and self-government.

THE STATUTORY LAW

In addition to the body of the common law, Canada has also availed itself of many of those statutes which have been from time to time passed by parliament in England to meet a condition of things to which the old maxims of the law could not apply.

The establishment of legislatures in the provinces, we have seen, was only a little later than the entrance of the large British population, and it was therefore in their power to adapt English statutes to the circumstances of this country at the very commencement of our history, or to pass such enactments as were better suited to the country.

Thus it happens that gradually a large body of Canadian statutory law has been built upon the common law foundation of the legal structure.

With a view of making law more intelligible it has, consequently been wisely ordered at different times, that all these statutes should be revised and consolidated in one or more volumes, with suitable tables and indexes—by commissions composed of learned lawyers and judges.

The people of the Dominion and of all the provinces, except Prince Edward Island, have now easy access by these means to the statutory law that governs them.

It is found convenient in the intervals between the consolidations of the statutory law to collect together, from time to time, all the enactments on a particular subject and incorporate them, with such amendments as are found necessary, in one consolidating statute. This has been found especially useful in the case of voluminous laws affecting railways, insurance, banking, and other matters of public import.

The criminal code has also been consolidated in this way and forms a code of criminal rules of law to be applied by the courts.

In the Dominion and at intervals in some of the provinces, at table is printed in the annual volume of the statutes showing all the amendments to the various laws and all important statutes passed since the last general revision of the statutes.

COURTS OF LAW IN THE PROVINCES. THEIR COMPOSITION. AND GENERAL JURISDICTION

When we come to review the judicial system of the provinces we find in each of them several courts of superior and inferior jurisdiction; that is to say, whose powers vary very much in importance. These courts may be conveniently classified as follows, commencing at the foot of the judicial structure:

1. Inferior courts of civil jurisdiction, for the summary and speedy trial of offenders against the criminal law, for the preservation of the peace in every community, for the preservation of the peace in every community, for the preliminary examination of charges of crime, and the committal of the accused to prison for trial before a higher court.

3. Superior courts, for the trial of civil and criminal cases, not limited in amount or nature.

4. The highest court in each province, the court of appeal, to which cases tried by the other courts are brought for reconsideration.

5. Courts with special and limited jurisdiction, such as those for the dissolution of marriage, the proving of wills, the trial of disputed provincial and dominion elections, the revision of voters' lists and of assessment rolls in municipalities, etc.

By means of this machinery excellent provision is made for the settlement of controversies of every kind, for the prevention and punishment of crime, and for the preservation of law and order.

In all the provinces there is a court to hear appeals. In the provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Manitoba and British Columbia this court is composed of separate judges, but in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta appeals are decided by a number of judges of the supreme or highest court of the province sitting together. Saskatchewan has made provision for having separate appeal judges in the future.

Each province has a court of the highest jurisdiction. In Ontario it is called the high court division of the supreme court of Ontario; in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Alberta, it is called the supreme court; in New Brunswick and Manitoba it is called the court of the king's bench, and in Saskatchewan, when the new law comes into force it will also bear this latter name.

In Quebec the court of appeal is called the court of king's bench, and there is the superior court which has a jurisdiction corresponding to the high and supreme courts of the other provinces, but the judges are appointed for the various judicial districts into which the province is divided. The original intention was that the judges should reside in the districts for which they were appointed, but as a result of the improvement and rapidity of modern means of travel, and the pressure of work at the great centres, it has been found better that many of the judges of country districts should reside in Montreal and Quebec. In Quebec, with the exception of the circuit court of Montreal, there are no courts presided over by judges corresponding to the county court judges or district court judges that exist in other parts of Canada.

The judges of the superior courts of the several provinces go on circuit, as it is called, like the judges in eyre of William the Conqueror, visiting the principal towns and cities for the trial of important civil and criminal cases, but the seat of these courts is at the capitals of the provinces.

In addition to these superior courts there are in all the provinces, except Quebec, county court judges. In Saskatchewan and Alberta the judges are called district court judges. Those provinces not having been divided into counties. These judges, though their jurisdiction is limited both in civil and criminal cases, the more important cases being reserved for the superior courts, exercise very varied and extensive powers, both with respect to the trial of cases and also with respect to municipal and other matters closely affecting the daily life of the people.

Besides the principal courts above mentioned, the police and stipendiary magistrates and justices of the peace have jurisdiction for the trial of the less important criminal cases and offences and the violation of municipal rules and regulations. In most provinces they also have a very limited jurisdiction in simple civil cases such as suits for small sums of money.

QUICK GROWING TREES FOR THE PRAIRIES

Many of the species which can be used on the prairies are very rapid growers, for example, cottonwood, willow, Russian poplar, and Manitoba maple. It is safe to say that wood large enough for fuel can be grown from any of these trees within six years. After that time a plantation will increase in value and productiveness year by year, and will prove one of the best investments on the farm—Norman M. Ross, Indian Head Foest Nursery Station.

Chauvin School Trustees Meeting

creased to about 700 later.

J. T. Ross Esq., Deputy Minister, addressed the convention on the subject of uniformity of text books and methods as between the province.

He informed the convention that an effort was being made to enable the department to purchase all text books, and supply them to the districts at cost price. This will probably materialize in the near future. This would also apply to grades and teachers' certificates. The convention was in favor of the proposed arrangement.

Mr. MacDonald of Trochu presented an able paper on the subject of Municipal District School Boards. The advantages claimed were: A uniform School Tax within the Municipal District; uniform salaries for men of teachers; cheaper purchasing of supplies; and a uniform program of operations with the Municipal District. The main advantage would be the uniform rate of taxation. This was left over for another year. Much discussion was indulged in on this subject, but the delegates did not appear to be sufficiently informed on the matter to pass a verdict.

It was recommended and passed, that in future, Inspectors send in the reports of visits within thirty days of each inspection; to enable Trustees to remedy faults and failings exposed by such inspection.

Hon Mr. Baker, Minister of Education, took for his text the matter of running the schools, the burden to the taxpayer, the difficulties met by districts in general, and teachers' salaries. This was one of the main addresses of the convention. Hon.

Mr. Baker expred the opinion that, whatever the cost, and whatever the difficulties, the children must have the best education possible under the present conditions. Parents should uphold the teacher, and should not send a child to school who would say "father does not see why we should learn such and such a subject". If a good teacher was obtained, the ability and experience shoud be recognised and rewarded.

A teacher might start at the minimum, but should have an incentive to work for the highest salary. The parents could help their children quite a lot if they were willing.

Teachers' Salaries: This subject raised quite a hearty discussion; and the best contribution thereto was made by Mr. Scott, of Edmonton who stated that, although a farmer might have two crop failures, he might be able to make out pretty well on his average crops, and be able to invest in a good car; but the teacher had so much and no more. No matter how good the crop was, the teacher could not do anything very extravagant, even if he stayed in the same profession for twenty years. Suppose you reduced the salary of the teacher after two crop failures, would you raise it after the next good crop.

He did not advocate the taking out the losses of two bad crops from the wages of the poor teacher, and yet did not allow the teacher to reap the benefit of the good crops. How many farmer trustees had been able to purchase cars after the crops of 1915 and 1916? Did any trustee present know of any teacher who purchased a car out of his salary during those years? The question of loans to teachers now one trustee said that the province was providing normal training free for the normal students. Was it fully known to teh convention that the Province LOANED the money to normal students at the rate of $50 a month, out of which they paid $40 for board, and each student was expected to pay the loan back out of the first two years' salary, with interest?

Premier Greenfield presented a very able address, although his time was very limited; and the burden of his message to the trustees was: Make your Recommendations to Parliament very carefully: if this is done they will have every possible attention, and wil not waste much time. Whatever the province thinks is really required for the purposes of education, after seeing your resolutions, will have the best possible consideration. Do Not Pass Resolutions In A Hurry. Mr. Greenfield has been a school trustee for the last thirteen years: and, with his Municipal experience, should know of what he speaks.

Black-Listing: This was deplored by the convention, and it was left to the Department to adopt what measures it deemed advisable to prevent this despicable method of procedure.

Teachers' Contracts: The convention was in favor of reverting to the old form of contract; thirty days notice on either side.

Mr. Foxwell thought there was an air of distrust throughout the whole of the convention, shown by the rural trustees, who made frequent objections to what they considered "over" tactics. High Schools were to be accorded further consideration in regard to grants, especially where they accepted pupils from rural districts without any contribution. The period when a child could be withdrawn from school for six weeks for rural pursuits was recommended to be reduced to three weeks.

Schools should be organized into Municipal Districts for convention purposes; these districts should draw up their own resoutions, and send their own delegates to the main conventions. The present form of convention was too unweildy to be properly handled, and to carry on any business in the best manner.

Mrs. Saul moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Foxwell for his very able report.

Chairman then declared the meeting adjourned.

Autoist: Can you tell me where I'll get board and lodging for the night.

Inhabitant: Keep right along till ye come to whar the road's tore up, foler till ye strike a washout. If ye get over the washout, stop at the fust cabin on yer right. The owner'll fix ye up if he don't take a dislike to ye.
